About Me

After owning my own café and travelling for a few years I'm getting back into my area of expertise, teaching business. My experience as a business owner has made me feel well prepared to teach business, and more excited than ever to share what I have learnt. My experience this year as a relief teacher in Melbourne has made me feel comfortable in the classroom with different classes at different schools every day.

Summary of Skills

- 4 years at university has taught me to manage my time and be able to work towards goals.
- 5 years working in hospitality, often in leadership positions has taught me to manage people and focus a group of people on achieving something together.
- 2 years as a café owner furthered these skills and really taught me to hold myself accountable for everything I do.

Relevant Experience

- 9-months as a relief teacher for Tradewind Melbourne
- My degree included two 31-day placements teaching accounting and business to grades 10-12. I also taught some mathematics and was lucky enough to go on school excursions with my classes.
- My degree also required me to do 65 hours of wider field experience which I completed through some short courses on psychology, mindfulness, but most of my hours were done with a grade 10 class who were doing a semester long entrepreneurial venture. Their project was a coffee cart to set up at school which I advised them on.
